Top Document Workflow Challenges Businesses Face Today

The modern office demands efficiency, connectivity, and adaptability, but legacy hardware often stands in the way.

Outdated Devices

Aging printers and copiers can slow down productivity, break down more often, and lack modern features like wireless printing, cloud connectivity, or automated workflows.

Fragmented Systems

When your print environment includes a patchwork of different brands, software platforms, and disconnected devices, it creates inefficiencies, confusion, and support headaches.

High Maintenance Costs

Older or poorly managed equipment tends to break down more often, burn through toner and parts, and require frequent service calls. These costs add up quickly, both in budget and employee downtime.

Data Security Risks

Printers and copiers are often overlooked security threats, but they handle sensitive data and can be entry points for cyberattacks. Without encryption, user authentication, or access controls, your business is exposed.
